Elegant Classic Yachting on the Intracoastal Waterway

“Windrush” is spending this summer at the exquisite River Dunes community, on the Neuse River just north of Oriental, NC. In late October, when a chill begins to be felt in the air, “Windrush” will depart the River Dunes/Oriental area, and she will head south on the Intracoastal Waterway. She will cruise the coasts of the Carolinas, then meander along the very natural Georgia and northern Florida coasts. This year “Windrush” is considering cruising on Florida’s St. Johns River before continuing down the coast to the beautiful waters and warm temperatures of south Florida.

“Windrush” is a classic with the casual elegance of the mid-sixties, and she is very comfortable for up to four guests overnight and 6 guests for day charters. Plan now for your fall cruise on the Intracoastal Waterway, or a unique Florida Keys or Florida West Coast vacation for the winter.
